HEADLANDS' SPACES

Rodeo Room

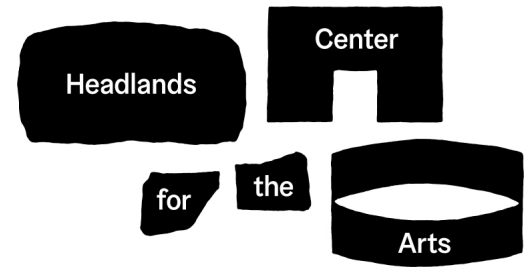

Renovated in 1987 by conceptual sculptors David Ireland and Mark Thompson, the Rodeo Room often functions as Headlands' conference room. The walls are shellacked with rich colors of ochre and green, reflecting the hues in the hills visible just beyond the windows. Max occupancy: 22. Room Measurements: Square footage: 612; 36' L x 17' W x 12'

Eastwing

The Eastwing is the main public event space in Building 944. Like the Rodeo Room, the space was remade by David Ireland, who led its renovation in 1987 with an eye towards creating an aesthetically pleasing and functional space. Occupancy varies by event. Room Measurements: Square footage: 1,850, 50' L x 37' W x 12' H.

Mess Hall

The Mess Hall, Headlands' dining space, is much more than a utilitarian renovation. Artist Ann Hamilton created a comfortable and welcoming environment that encourages interaction among all who come to Headlands. From the mismatched chairs, to the hearth-flanked open space for preparing and eating food, the Mess Hall embodies the sense of community that is so integral to Headlands' mission. Seated capacity: 140. Room Measurements: 39'10" x 34'.

Westwing

The Westwing, also known as the Officer's Club, is a large space that is home to an eclectic mix of items, including an array of tables, chairs, and couches. This room is a popular choice for groups looking to spread out and move around, or those who desire a less traditional meeting space. Occupancy varies by event. Room Measurements: 50' L x 37' W x 12' H; Square footage: 1,850.

The Commons

Use of Headlands' new outdoor gathering space, The Commons, is included in weekday rentals. Gather outside to relax and enjoy the area's renowned natural beauty.
